Any shareholder who has the right to attend the General Shareholders' Meeting may be represented by another person, whether they are a shareholder or not, in accordance with the conditions established by law. Proxies must be granted specifically for each General Meeting by the means permitted by law, including the proxy form printed on the attendance, proxy, and voting card issued by the entity responsible for keeping the shareholders register.

Representation that is granted by means of remote communication shall only be considered valid if it is carried out through:

The attendance of the shareholder at the General Shareholders' Meeting, either in person or remotely by casting their vote remotely prior to the General Meeting, implies the revocation of any proxy, regardless of the date of delegation. RECOMMENDATION OF REMOTE ATTENDANCE AND ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Depending on how the health situation resulting from the pandemic caused by COVID-19 develops, please be advised that on the date of the General Meeting, compliance with health regulations may lead the Company to adopt specific measures, such as capacity limitations and minimum distances, among others, which may significantly reduce the capacity of the venue where the General Meeting will be held.

Please note that, should these kinds of measures be in place, once the venue's maximum capacity has been reached, shareholders will not be allowed inside. In order to treat all shareholders equally, shareholders and their proxies will be granted access based on their order of arrival.

Likewise, all hygiene and sanitary measures set out by the staff in the hall must be followed.

Shareholders should note that they can take part and register beforehand through any of the alternative channels provided to them by the company, as set out in the meeting notice (voting and granting a proxy before the General Meeting remotely) and can attend virtually, under the conditions indicated in this meeting notice.

In this regard, in order to safeguard the general interests and health and safety of shareholders, employees, and other persons involved in the preparation and holding of the General Meeting, the Board of Directors recommends that shareholders participate in the General Meeting remotely by attending the General Meeting through the procedure described in this announcement, avoiding, as much as possible, physical attendance at the place where the General Meeting is to be held.

If the spread of the COVID-19 pandemic leads to an exceptional health situation that prevents or restricts, under the applicable regulations, people from travelling or meeting face-to-face, the company, after giving sufficient prior notice by the same means through which this notice has been published, may adopt any potentially suitable extraordinary measures, such as holding the Meeting virtually only, which will always comply with the applicable legislation and internal regulations.
